

I DON'T WANNA BE,
I AM.

GROUP EXHIBITION

CURATED BY INK AND MOVEMENT

31 AUGUST - 20 SEPTEMBER 2022

ABOUT THE EXHIBITION

I Don't Wanna Be, I AM is an itinerant group exhibition curated by the Ink and Movement (IAM) art project, that brings together the work of different artists under one roof. Creators who, despite their distinctive backgrounds and uniquely individual work, share an encompassing creative vision.

It explores the concept of identity within the context of the international art world and is born from the necessity to approach new codes, new spaces and new interaction methods inside the universe of contemporary creation without hesitation.

Having already visited Hamburg, Miami, and Lisbon, the exhibition now arrives in Dubai through RexRomae, presenting the works of Argentinian artists Elian Chali and Franco Fasoli, and Spanish artists Martí Sawe, Misterpiro, Nano4814, Okuda San Miguel, Sabek, Sixe Paredes and Spok.

The result is an exhibition that is open to multiple interpretations and for all audiences, offering the opportunity to contemplate individual and collective creative identities.

Okuda San Miguel, Family Time in Pandemic II, 2021. Synthetic enamel on wood, 200 x 200 cm.

ABOUT REXROMAE

RexRomae is an urban contemporary art gallery founded in 2014 by Rom Levy. Based in London, the gallery creates pop-up exhibitions in vacant spaces across the world. It thus replicates the ephemeral ethos of urban art.

Either in the same city or in different parts of the world, the locations of RexRomae's exhibitions are always diverse. Just as an artist would travel to create a piece, the mobile gallery opens spaces in the urban gaps, using mostly sites under construction or in a process of transition. These venues then come alive for the duration of the exhibition, a short time frame for an intense experience.

RexRomae cultivates the element of surprise, the ephemerality and the great ambitions that form the soul and future of contemporary urban art, in opposition with the traditional conception of the exhibition. Our innovative and inventive projects are dedicated to supporting an internationally dynamic roster of artists.

ABOUT INK AND MOVEMENT
